helps make neighborhoods
better places to live.

This is the "before" picture of the N.A. Hanner House, which was built around 1875. It had no indoor plumbing and no electricity -- no lights, no stove, no phones and, of course, no TV! The house was renovated by the City's Department of Housing & Community Development in 2003.

Color the "after" picture of the Hanner House.

Give it a fresh coat of paint, and add some nice touches,
like trees and flowers, curtains, and a family!

In 1870, when the Hanner House was built, Greensboro residents used oil lamps for light and told stories for entertainment.
